Lead poisoning

Lead is often found in the paint in homes built before 1978. Adults and children can get lead into their bodies if they:

- Breathe in lead dust (especially during activities such as renovations, repairs and painting that disturb painted surfaces)
- Swallow lead dust that has settled on food, food preparation surfaces and other places
- Eat paint chips or soil that contain lead.
- Drink water from the tap with old plumbing
- Eat certain food or spices, or touch certain toys or pottery that contain lead

Young children face the greatest risk.

Why? Because their bodies easily absorb lead and they often put things into their mouths.

Symptoms may be easy to miss.

Or, they may be confused with signs of other illnesses, like the flu. Warning signs of lead poisoning may include:

- stomach pains, constipation, frequent vomiting or poor appetite
- sleep problems, irritability, tiredness or headache

Consult your child's health-care provider if you notice any of these signs. This pamphlet is not a substitute for the advice of a qualified health-care provider.
